

Community involvement is an important cornerstone upon which GGV Colliery bases its vision.

Engagement and contribution to the development of the local community is an ongoing process which will be maintained.

Henry Mushonga, Community Development

As the GGV project starts taking shape, the Community Development Department starts to meet the needs of the community through gradually employing local community members.

Community projects involve job creation and poverty alleviation. GGV, in conjunction with local Councillors and Emalahleni Municipality, has started discussions on improving the face of Ogies town.

Local community members are important and priority for the mine, regardless of gender.

Informal hawker stalls will be erected during 2008 as part of Integrated Development Plans for Mpumalanga.

As the mine expands and more construction takes place, social consultation with families on relocating graves sites are being discussed.

Resettlement of affected communities is also being planned as part of community welfare.
